

YOU REMEMBER Bill the steel worker?
He went into a lot of homes, the Hodgson's home for one.
Mr. Hodgson and his son Jack
were arguing the toss about nationalising steel.
You know how these talks go.

THEN JACK turned on the radio—and Bill came in on the air.

You could hear the roar of the furnace behind him.
And on Bill's heels, a Production Engineer, a Shop
Steward, a Union Leader and a Managing Director.

They put all sides of the case fair and square.

THEY LEFT the answer up to Dad and Jack—and to you too, if you were listening.

Here's the smaller brother of the famous Baffle Set. Costs less too. It has all the essential features of the big chap including, of course, very good reproduction.
